LawyerLinks Advantage Upgrades Popular Corporate Law Research Tool

To further assist legal professionals in their research efforts, LawyerLinks Advantage – the first topic-based online electronic research tool – has been upgraded to include a variety of enhanced and simple-to-use features offering instant access to relevant legal precedent, practice and source materials. These advances (Release 1.2.0.) significantly reduce the amount of research time expended by legal research personnel and minimize reliance of printed materials.

“Our goal is to tailor our service to best meet the needs of legal researchers and to make their jobs as productive as possible,” said Eric Korb, managing partner and COO of Lawyer Links LLC. “With this in mind, we surveyed current users to see how the Advantage could be even more beneficial and time-saving and added new features based on their feedback.”

Highlights include convenient personalization and collaboration tools that allow users to access LawyerLinks Advantage from any Internet browser. By simply signing on with their User IDs, they can e-mail links to research results directly to colleagues and clients.

“This is a great feature for advisers, especially if they are on the road because it allows them to collaborate with clients and review the research results from any location,” Korb said. “It also eliminates the need to print out and physically mail the research results, which can become cumbersome.”

LawyerLinks’ “at-a-glance” topic indexes are continuously updated and cross-indexed by legal experts to harness a seamless topic web of all regulatory information, precedent documents, legal opinions, filings, form examples and supplemental material, including links to original documents. LawyerLinks topics include Deals, Regulations, Sarbanes-Oxley, Corporate Governance and Statutes, among others.

The Final Word

Verdatum Release Provides New Digital Dictation Features

Version 2.0 Gold of Verdatum's Digital Dictation System boasts advanced features such as fully automated workflow, custom notification, robust reporting and law-specific application integration built into a new platform designed specifically for attorneys and law firms.

Verdatum's latest version offers lawyers, paralegals, legal administrators and law firm managers many advanced features.

- A fully automated workflow enables attorneys to transfer dictation to administrative support without entering data and allows administrators to return work to attorneys simply by completing it.
- Custom security capability allows law firms to apply varying levels of security to even the most confidential dictation work products, whether by firm, practice area, attorney, client or matter.
- Custom notification allows attorneys to determine whether they want to be notified that their work is completed through the program or by e-mail to anywhere, including portable communication devices.
- Robust reporting enables management to create customized reports on any data in the system and to export the data directly to Microsoft Excel and other software.
- Law-specific application integration allows attorneys to create dictation out of their case management systems, save into their document management systems and export data into their time and billing systems.

The system also has cost recovery capabilities that allow firms to automate the tracking and recovery of such costs as overtime secretarial work and outsourced transcription costs. Secretaries and transcriptionists also see significant benefits, as Verdatum allows them to see exactly what types of dictation have been forwarded to them, who sent them, their lengths and when the items are due back to their attorneys.

As a Microsoft and Interwoven partner, Verdatum continues to tightly integrate with Microsoft Office and Interwoven Worksite, though the platform now can integrate with several other law firm applications as well.
