In this session, the Corporate Legal Operations Consortium (CLOC)’s leadership will discuss how the increasing value general counsels (GCs) and their teams have delivered clients over the last 40 years has led to an evolution in the GC role — from risk manager to trusted adviser. GCs are now drivers of business strategy and corporate success. What was once the domain of big firm partners is now the domain of the GC and their in-house teams.

This transformation has led to significant changes across the industry, especially as GCs can’t do it all alone. However, rather than looking to law firms as they once did, today sophisticated in-house teams led by their legal ops function drive service delivery. Law firms, legal services organizations (LSOs), technology providers and others offer resources to craft sophisticated, highly tailored coverage models.

With legal operations functions managing and directing hundreds of billions of dollars worth of spending under a mandate to run their departments like a business, a lot more change is on the horizon.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify the key business, legal and law practice management drivers at the heart of the ongoing evolution of the role of the GC.
- Discover insights to how process and technology are being used by legal ops function to ensure quality service delivery.
- Infer how GCs and legal ops teams are thinking about service delivery.
- Review how in-house teams look to use outsourcing to drive quality and efficiency.
- Recognize the influence of regulators and law schools on legal support models and for future service delivery.
- Examine how regulatory change/ inaction will impact issues such as the unauthorized practice of law.

Audience Statement: This intermediate session assumes that participants have a working knowledge of law practice management, legal marketing and basic economic principles.

On Friday, we will be joined by an esteemed panel of founding members from the leadership team of the Corporate Legal Operations Consortium (CLOC) whose broad mission is to promote industry collaboration among in-house legal operations professionals.
Faculty:

Connie Brenton, JD, MBA
As Chief of Staff and Senior Director of Legal Operations at NetApp Inc., Connie Brenton has leveraged her legal and business background to create an innovative and best-in-class legal department that has been recognized internationally for its innovation in the areas of strategic vision, partner and financial management and building efficiencies.

Prior to NetApp, Brenton served as Senior Director, Deputy General Counsel at Sun Microsystems and then Managing Counsel at Oracle, where she also initiated the legal operations role.

Brenton has been active in developing and promoting the legal operations role throughout the business and legal communities. She is the Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board of the Corporate Legal Operations Consortium (CLOC), the world’s largest, fastest growing and most active group of legal operations professionals. She publishes on the topics of the changing legal ecosystem and legal operations and speaks internationally on the topic of “Running Legal Like a Business.”

Brenton holds a JD, an MBA and a BA in Economics. She was selected as one of 100 Women of Influence in Silicon Valley for 2014 and was named one of the top 10 deputy general counsels in 2012.

Jeff Franke, JD, MBA
Jeff Franke is a member of the Executive Team and Board of Directors of the Corporate Legal Operations Consortium (CLOC), a nonprofit comprised of more than 650 global corporations. A founding member of CLOC, he serves as its General Counsel and Corporate Secretary and drives all content development for CLOC’s Institutes. Prior to CLOC, Franke worked at Yahoo, Sun Microsystems and Oracle, and in private practice.

With more than 20 years of experience at major high-tech companies and in private practice, Franke’s areas of expertise include law practice management, technology licensing, commercial transactions, commercial litigation, open source licensing, product and M&A technology due diligence, and legal operations.

He received his JD, MBA and BA from Santa Clara University.

Steve Harmon, JD
Steve Harmon is a member of the Cisco Legal executive management team, where he manages the Legal Technology Solutions (LTS), Global Export Trade (GET) teams, the global process for trademarks and corporate marketing, and the Global Center of Excellence — an industry-leading example of the use of “captive legal process outsourcing.” The LTS team is chartered with developing and maintaining systems and process that support the efficiency and accuracy of legal functions at Cisco. These systems and processes include contract management, export compliance tools, regulatory compliance, legal knowledge management, web-based resources and file room operations. The GET team is responsible for expediting Cisco’s worldwide trade by ensuring global compliance with global export rules and regulations.

Harmon is also a Co-Founder and Board member of the Corporate Legal Operations Consortium.

He holds a BS in Business Management (Information Systems emphasis) and a JD, both from Brigham Young University.
As firms race to consider what innovation means to them and how it can impact their firm, many have already jumped in and leveraged technology in innovative ways. We’ll cover some industry-wide trends and showcase several firms’ own innovation initiatives, including practical use cases of artificial intelligence.

Learning Objectives:

• Recognize what is happening in the market with innovation, artificial intelligence (AI) and other changes in technology.
• Identify what their peers are doing to apply innovation at their firms.
• Discuss practical examples and use cases of artificial intelligence.

Faculty:

Thomas Baldwin
Over his more than 20-year career in the legal industry, Thomas Baldwin has established himself as a globally recognized thought leader and expert in practice management and economics, information management, legal technology and knowledge management. During his career, he has held several C-level positions at leading Am Law 100 firms, including Cadwalader, Reed Smith and Sheppard Mullin. In 2016, he was inducted as a Fellow into the College of Law Practice Management and in 2013 was named to the National Law Journal’s inaugural list of 50 Business of Law Trailblazers & Pioneers.

As a Partner at Fireman & Company, Baldwin specializes in building and leading teams aimed at improving firm efficiencies, profitability, attorney working practices and user experiences. His career success stems from a deep understanding of law firm financials and business practices, and then strategically aligning them with legal processes, attorney behaviors and best-of-breid legal technologies.

Baldwin has been a member of numerous industry boards including the Thomson Reuters Engage Advisory Board, Law Technology News Editorial Advisory Board, the LexisNexis Advisory Council and the Law.com Technology Advisory Board. He is regularly asked to present at and chair international and domestic conferences covering emerging trends in the legal industry.
Positive leadership is not a “Kumbaya” or “let’s all be happy” approach to business. It is the hard science of positive psychology and human behavior applied to business in a practical, useful way.

Today’s law firm business leaders work in an increasingly fast-paced, high-pressure environment with little time for reflection or carefully considered decisions. A positive leadership approach helps balance busyness, build resilience and create a fast path to goal achievement.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify a strengths-based approach to building your leadership capabilities and capacity in your team.
- Recognize the benefits of simple interventions such as mindfulness and positive behavioral practices to help gain control of your work and your day.
- Discover enterprise-wise methodologies — such as appreciative inquiry — that tap into the positive core of individuals and organizations.

Audience Statement: This advanced session assumes participants have 10-plus years of work experience.

As a recipient of Golf Digest’s prestigious “4-½ Star Award” and one of San Diego’s finest golf clubs, Steele Canyon Golf Club has been nationally recognized as one of Southern California’s best publicly accessible golf courses. The 27-hole championship golf course was designed by Gary Player, one of history’s greatest golfers. He designed Steele Canyon with respect and appreciation of the terrain that provides a unique golf experience amid nature’s beauty.

Your foursome will have time to get together and hit some practice range balls, and the shotgun will start at 1 p.m. with an estimated end time of 4:30 p.m. Once everyone finishes up and prizes are awarded, we’ll get back onto the motor coach for a return to the hotel by 6 p.m.
